

Miltos Yerolemou

Syrio Forel

Miltos Yerolemou is a Shakespearean trained actor based in London with an impressive list of theatre credits to his name including work with the Royal Shakespeare Company and The Globe Theatre. Until recently he only had a small amount of TV and film experience but in 2010 Miltos was cast in HBO's Game of Thrones as the elegant yet deadly sword master Syrio Forel. Syrio is hired by Eddard Stark to be Arya's instructor in the smooth Braavosi fencing style known as Water Dancing.

Miltos has recently been appearing in the spectacular The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe theatre production at the purpose built ThreeSixty Theatre in Kensington Gardens, London. Miltos plays Ginarrbrik, the Ice Queen's dwarf henchman. He's evil but Miltos puts on such a great comic performance you can't help but secretly love him.

Miltos is an incredibly versatile and skilled actor with such diverse talents as Ballroom Dancing, Stage Combat, Stand-up Comic, Puppetry, Stilt Walking, Trapeze, ScubaDiving, Tai-Chi and of course Fencing.

In fact Miltos kindly offered to host a fencing workshop at TitanCon 2011 - something we called "Water Dancing Live with Syrio Forel. Just so." and it will be back again this year!

Johannah Playford

Those of you who attended TitanCon 2011 will remember Jo's performance during the Water Dancing workshop with Miltos Yerolemou and the Dothraki song performed at our Coach Tour feast on the Sunday.

Jo and the boys from Clan Ulaidh will be back again to entertain the crowds at Shane's Castle and she has also convened the Hardbitten Fleabottom Swingtime Band who will be performing songs from and inspired by A Song of Ice and Fire.

Jo was a featured extra in the Game of Thrones "Pilot That Never Was", a role which largely involved curtsying many hundreds of times to Mark Addy's Robert Baratheon.