

Aimee Richardson Myrcella Baratheon

Aimee was originally going to be a guest at last year's TitanCon but much to her utter dismay HBO flew her off to Croatia for an extended holiday in beautiful sunny Dubrovnik over that weekend. She was absolutely gutted to have missed out on that massive downpour of rain that got us all soaked in Tollymore Forest during the coach tour while she was forced to spend the day at the beach. So unfair! Thankfully we are pleased to say Aimee will be able to join us at TitanCon 2012 and I know she will be jumping up and down with excitement to be able to make it this year.

Aimee describes filming her Game of Thrones scenes as "the absolute best days of my life so far. I loved every single second, even the portaloos and the waiting around. Getting to Dubrovnik last year to film my scenes there was just amazing. I had such a brilliant time and even on my days off I wanted to be on set. I can't wait to do it all over again".

Callum Wharry Tommen Baratheon

We were delighted to have Callum Wharry join us at TitanCon 2011, though only for the later part of the afternoon. Callum had a football match in the morning and of course his team won the match!

It's the same story again this year, Callum will be footballing in the morning and joining us in the afternoon to be reunited with his on-screen sister Aimee Richardson. Good luck in the match Callum!

Callum went through two auditions in 2010 to land the part of Tommen, his first major acting role of any kind.

We didn't see much of Tommen in season 1 but he became much more prominent in season 2 culminating in that outstanding scene at the end of Blackwater where he is sat on Cersei's lap. The tension was palpable as she was about to pour poison down her son's throat to prevent what Cersei believed would be a crueller death at hands of Stannis Baratheon. Really great acting from both Lena Headey and Callum Wharry, he plays innocent so well.