

Andy Luke

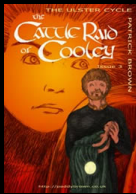

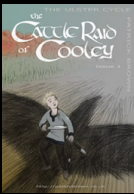

Andy Luke is a local writer who draws. Over the last fifteen years he's produced a mass of self-published comics including Bob's, a Bangor based bed-sit-com, and Optimus and Me.

He's perhaps best known for his 24 hour comics, Gran, Absence: a comic about epilepsy, and Don't get Lost. With this approach he'll be facilitating The Magnificent One Day Comic Book Factory at TitanCon 2012 with assistance from fellow comic artists Patrick Brown and Paul J Holden.

Patrick Brown

Patrick Brown lives in Belfast and has been creating and self-publishing comics since the mid-1990s. He is currently working on The Cattle Raid of Cooley, a graphic novel adapting the ancient Irish epic, drawn in red ink in an improvisational style, which has been serialised on the web since 2008.

Paul J Holden

Paul J Holden is a Belfast based comic artist. Despite spending nearly 20 years in the IT industry he finally escaped to live the life of crippling poverty normally associated with being an artist. He is also a dad. Which means any money not given over to the crippling poverty is spent on the kids.
