

Laura Pradelska

Quaithe

You probably won't recognise Laura Pradelska from Game of Thrones, well maybe just her eyes, because she plays the role of Quaithe, the mysterious woman in the red and gold tiled mask that appears in Qarth during season two and talks with Jorah Mormont giving him the vital clue about where the dragons have been taken to.

Laura was born and raised in Frankfurt, Germany. She relocated to London at the age of 17, was accepted to the prestigious Drama Centre London and graduated in 2009 with honours.

Laura has gone on to enjoy a stellar career on stage with many 4 and 5 star reviews. She is best known for the role of American stripper Faith in the brilliant one-woman show Still Life At The Sushi Bar for which Laura was awarded Best Actor at the 2010 Fringe Report Awards.

Luke Barnes

Oh those dirty looks. Rast © HBO 2011.

Rast

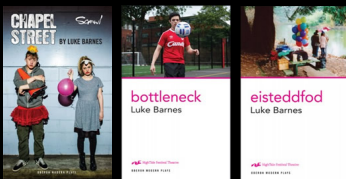

When it comes to giving dirty looks I think Luke Barnes could win awards. His character in Game of Thrones is Rast, a nasty piece of work in the Night's Watch.

Rast disappeared in season two but he must have been hiding in the back of the army or something because he returned in season three to stab Commander Mormont in the back, quite literally.

At this point you might be thinking to yourself, hang on, wasn't Rast played by Luke McEwan? Well yes it is, or it was. Luke McEwan was his stage name but he is in fact an emerging playwright under his real name Luke Barnes and so Luke prefers to be known by his real name.

The stage plays Luke has written include Chapel Street, Bottleneck and Eisteddfod.

Available in print from Oberon Books.