

GUESTS

Ian McDonald

We are thrilled to once again have Belfast's very own Ian McDonald back as a guest at TitanCon 2013. Ian is a science-fiction novelist best known for his BSFA award winning and Hugo nominated novels River of Gods (2004), Brasyl (2007) and The Dervish House (2010).

Ian has written 20 books, his first being the Locus Award winning novel Desolation Road (1988). Set on a partially terraformed Mars the novel outlines the history of a town called Desolation Road founded by a lone scientist and a collection of strays and castaways.

Ian's latest work is a YA trilogy called Everness comprising Planesrunner (2012), Be My Enemy (2013) and the forthcoming Empress of the Sun.

Peadar Ó Guilín

Peadar will be hosting the Masquerade again this year.

We invite you to come be enslaved by Peadar Ó Guilín.

In September 2007 Peadar Ó Guilín published his first novel, The Inferior. It tells the story of Stopmouth and his family who must battle for survival in a world of tribal societies. To live they must hunt rival species or negotiate flesh-trade with those who crave meat of the freshest human kind. There is but one law: Eat or be Eaten.

The second book in the series, The Deserter (2011), continues Stopmouth's journey as he attempts to understand The Roof and find the mysterious woman he loves who fell from it. Peadar is currently working on the final book of the trilogy called The Volunteer.
